Recovering the lost language of villages

For thousands of years, argues New Hampshire architect David Howard, human beings seem to have known quite well and quite instinctively how to design and build their villages. It is only recently, Howard says, that modern man seems to have lost that ability...as we also lost our instinct for sustainable design. Howard believes we are now trying to recapture both instincts.

After years touring villages here and in Europe in an effort to understand thoroughly how successful village design evolved, Howard believes he understands "the lost language of villages" and sees in this understanding an enormous opportunity for all of us to regain control over the design and development of our villages and new towns.

In his April 15 presentation in the BSA Lecture Series, Howard shares his perception of this lost language and describes his own current efforts to design villages that offer "ethical alternatives to Disneyland" as he designs three classic New England villages at the foot of the tallest mountain in Massachusetts.

Howard, who is also a wonderful story-teller, was trained as an architect at MIT and is the founder of The Village Company of New England. His BSA presentation on April 15 begins with a 5:30 pm reception at the BAC, 320 Newbury St., Boston. There is no charge for BSA members; all others are welcome and pay $3.00 or may join the BSA at the door.

BSA international tours program goes to Spain and the Far East this year

The design by Frank Gehry FAIA of the extraordinary new museum in Bilbao (above) is one of the highlights of the BSA tour to Spain in September. This tour also offers extensive opportunities to assess the best modern and traditional Spanish interior design and also takes us to the Lisbon Expo in Portugal.

In October, the BSA tour program takes us to Japan (where the BSA began this program several years ago).

In the course of this BSA program over the past few years, we have taken hundreds of architects and allied professionals to Japan, Italy, and last year to France. These are superb architectural tours. For more information, call the BSA's tour provider and partner, Architects Abroad, at 800-272-8808 or 415-955-2753.

Malden Mills project exhibited at BSA

Last month, the BSA Exhibits Committee initiated a new exhibits program designed to focus on a single, recent award-winning project by a BSA member. These unusual exhibits — designed to offer more than the usual single photograph of an award-winning project — are meant to provide the public and the profession with a much closer look at recent work by BSA members and, specifically, work judged by other architects and allied professionals to be worthy of special recognition.

We continue this experimental program this month with a look at one of the three BSA award-winning projects in the 1997 AIA New England Design Awards Program — the extraordinary work done by Bechtel Frank Erickson for the Malden Mills Polartec Manufacturing Building (bottom of the first column) in Lawrence.

A detailed look at this project will be on exhibit in the lobby of The Architects Building from April 3 to April 30.

We believe this new approach to the way in which the BSA exhibits work should enhance the value of each exhibit. We are grateful to Suffolk Construction Company for its continuing sponsorship of the BSA exhibits program and we invite your comments on this new effort.

"Works-in-Progress" hosts Robert Miklos

Robert Miklos AIA, Principal of Schwartz/Silver Architects, is the guest in the April 30 edition of "Works-in-Progress" at the BSA.

"Works-in-Progress" is the monthly opportunity for architects and interns to discuss and critique our guest's current work. These are free-wheeling discussions and are often exciting, always stimulating and provocative...and often lead to design changes in our guest's work.

Miklos, who also serves as Commissioner of Design on the BSA Board of Directors, will be focusing on his firm's current design of the Hyde Park Branch Library in Boston.

We invite you to join us for hors d'oeuvres and conversation. You can reserve your spot for this April 30 event at the BSA by making your reservations now; see the details on p. 2. Attendance is limited to ensure a good conversation, so act with all deliberate speed.

Young architects juried exhibit deadline is April 30

This year the BSA inaugurates a special exhibit designed to explore the impact young architects in Massachusetts have on the design work being done by Massachusetts firms.

Conceived by Schwartz/Silver principal Robert Miklos AIA, who serves currently as Commissioner of Architectural Design on the BSA Board of Directors, this juried exhibit of work by young architects is open to those who received their last formal architecture degree no more than 10 years ago. The jury includes new Architecture editor Reed Kroloff, Atlanta's Mack Scogin AIA, and New York City's Laurie Hawkinson.

The BSA has mailed guidelines for this juried competition to every architect in Massachusetts; for additional copies of the guidelines, call the BSA at 617-951-1433x221.

Calls for entries: homes/housing and interiors

The BSA administers two Winter/Spring design awards programs for design professionals in Massachusetts and design professionals throughout the world who have done work in this region. Among the opportunities available now are these:

♦ The 1998 Housing Design Awards program solicits all types of residential design from single-family homes to multi-family and institutional projects and every other residential project type. All architects in Massachusetts are eligible to submit projects throughout the world and architects outside Massachusetts are eligible to submit projects built in Massachusetts. The deadline is April 16; for additional copies of the Call for Entries, call 617-951-1433x221.

♦ The 1998 Interior Architecture/Interior Design Awards program, co-sponsored by IIDA and ASID, invites architects and interior designers throughout Massachusetts to submit work they have done anywhere in the world. Architects and interior designers outside Massachusetts are invited to submit their Massachusetts projects. The submission deadline is April 23; for additional copies of the Call for Entries, call 617-951-1433x221.

Building envelope group grows apace

Several months ago, in an effort led by Richard Keleher AIA, a group of architects and engineers began meeting at the BSA to focus on issues that surround the design of the building envelope.

The group interested in these issues grew so rapidly that it has now moved to a much larger conference room generously provided by Shepley Bulfinch at 40 Broad Street next door to the BSA. This group of design professionals and others interested in building envelope issues gathers at 4:30 pm on the second Monday of every month in the sixth floor conference room at Shepley Bulfinch.

This month's meeting, on April 13, focuses on masonry waterproofing. Committee member Bob Heywood, Vice-President of The Thompson and Lichtner Company in Cambridge, will lead this discussion of metal, fabric and plastic flashing, new and retrofit conditions, window details, and flashing for EIFS.

Next month, on May 11, we focus on indoor air quality and the building envelope by addressing pressure response and air tightness in the building envelope. Leading the discussion in May will be Committee member Joe Lstiburek, founder of Building Science Corporation in Westford and well-known among BSA members for his presentations at Build Boston and other BSA events.

Later on in the year we will focus on EIFS developments (drainage plane, etc.), field-testing of structural silicone glazing, spontaneous breakage of tempered glass, and the Hancock failure (what really happened?).

We invite anyone with an interest in building envelope issues to join us at these monthly meetings...and, of course, AIA members earn Learning Units (while enjoying the refreshments we provide).

City Hall Plaza proposal

"A Plan to Revitalize Boston's City Hall Plaza" is the March 1998 publication prepared by The Trust for City Hall Plaza. Copies of the 100-page report are available from the Trust at 617-227-4915.

Rotch competition finalists' work on exhibit

The Rotch Traveling Scholarship, founded in 1883, is the oldest of its kind in the United States. The Rotch Scholar is selected annually through a two-stage design competition and receives $30,000 to help underwrite the costs of traveling and studying abroad for almost a year.

This year's final program was the design of a new headquarters for the World Monument Fund on a site at the end of Long Wharf in Boston. All of the finalists' submissions are on exhibit in The Architects Building from April 9 to April 30; the exhibit is co-sponsored by Suffolk Construction Company.

There is a special public reception at 6 pm on April 7 during which the award-winners will be identified and members of the jury will be available for comments. We invite all ChapterLetter readers to join us; call 617-951-1433x221 to let us know you are coming so we order enough refreshments.

"Art by Architects" on exhibit in Boston

Architectural photographer Peter Vanderwarker, at the request of The St. Botolph Club in the Back Bay, has assembled a stunning collection of architects' "work in progress, musings, outrageous ideas, and sublime renderings" that is on exhibit at the Club (199 Commonwealth Avenue) through May 10; the exhibit is open to the public on Wednesdays, 2 pm - 4 pm.

This same exhibit will be on display throughout the Summer (June 3 - August 31) at The Architects Building gallery, which is open Monday through Friday, 9 am - 5 pm.

The exhibit includes work by Robert Campbell FAIA, Alex Krieger FAIA, Peter Kuttner AIA, Rodolfo Machado, Assoc. AIA, Michael McKinnell FAIA, Steve Oles FAIA, Duke Reiter AIA, Charles Rose AIA, Moshe Safdie FAIA, Warren Schwartz FAIA, Robert Taylor AIA, and Maryann Thompson AIA.

Shapers of religious space gather in April and May forums

"Tradition and Community: Shapers of Religious Space" is the title of two Spring BSA forums designed and hosted by the BSA's Interfaith Forum on Religious Art and Architecture (IFRAA).

West elevation of the Christ Congregational Church of Brockton designed by Donham & Sweeney

These forums focus on religious space in Judaism and Christianity. We gather first on April 25 at the Christ Congregational Church of Brockton and then, on May 17, at the new Young Israel Synagogue of Brookline. The forum in Brockton on April 25 (1-3 pm) is led by theologian Dr. Robin Jensen, the Institute Director of Andover Newton Theological School. The panel includes Msgr. Dennis Sheehan, Pastor of St. Paul of Cambridge and Liturgist of the Boston Archdiocese; Rev. William McCoy, Pastor of Christ Congregational Church; and Brett Donham AIA, the architect of this church, who will also offer a guided tour of the recently constructed facility. The Church is located at 1350 Pleasant Street in Brockton; from Route 128 in Milton, take Route 24 South for seven miles to Exit 18B and then take Route 27 North to the first traffic light, turn left and go one-half mile to Pleasant Street.

Details on the May event at Young Israel Synagogue of Brookline will appear in next month's ChapterLetter.

This two-part symposium on the design of religious spaces grows from Brett Donham AIA's perception of the creative effort of designing a religious building as a tension between institutional and cultural tradition on the one hand and the desires of specific religious communities on the other.

All ChapterLetter readers are invited to join us for both of these events. There is a $5.00 charge for each event and you may send your payment and reservation to the BSA, 52 Broad St., Boston 02109; specify which of the two events, if not both, you plan to attend.

New architects' salary survey available from BSA

Finally, after a six-month delay due to problems you don't want to hear about, the 1997 edition of the BSA's Massachusetts Architects' Compensation Survey Report is available at the BSA. As usual, the survey report includes extensive data on salaries paid to Massachusetts architects at every job level or job category. In addition, the survey report includes summaries of the BAC's surveys of salaries its students are earning and the annual survey report from Tofias Fleishman Shapiro of other financial data regarding Boston architecture firms.

In addition, this year the survey report includes an extensive report on a survey of CADD use in the greater Boston area conducted by Ron Boretta AIA of Gale Associates in preparation for a Build Boston 1997 workshop.

To order a copy of the new report, use the Special Publications order form inserted in this issue of the ChapterLetter; it is item #01. For additional copies of the order form, call the BSA at 617-951-1433x221.

BSA honors members with donation to BFA

In 1992, the BSA Board of Directors voted to make contributions annually to the Boston Foundation for Architecture in honor of BSA members who died during the year.

With sadness, the Board noted the passing in 1997 of Lloyd Acton, Jr. AIA, Herbert Beckwith FAIA, Fred Bruck AIA, Arcangelo Cascieri FAIA, Dennis Kloko AIA, and R. M. Sizer AIA.

The BSA is pleased to be able to remember our colleagues with a donation to the Foundation; readers interested in making similar contributions should mail them to the Foundation at 52 Broad Street, Boston 02109.

Tiger Woods is not playing

Although Tiger Woods is not expected at the BSA Golf Tournament on June 4, about 200 local golfers are. Architects, engineers, clients, contractors, and others with waning hopes of playing on the PGA tour gather for this 10th-anniversary BSA tournament for 27 holes of great golf in one of the loveliest settings in New England, the Far Corner Golf Course in Boxford.

If you are interested in participating either as a player or a sponsor (or both), call Alexandra Lee today at 617-951-1433x225. You are also welcome to call if all you'd like to do is volunteer to enjoy a day on the links helping us run the event.

Fletch shares his decades of experience working overseas

Norman Fletcher FAIA, one of the founding principals of TAC and, more currently, founding principal of Fletcher Harkness Cohen Moneyhun in Boston, comes to the BSA on April 13 for the BSA International Committee's monthly discussion of New England architects working abroad.

From the very early years of TAC with Walter Gropius, Fletcher and his colleagues have been working extensively in other parts of the world and have continued to do so today. The benefits, the hurdles, the successes and the travails are part of Fletcher's informal presentation at the BSA. Join us; there is no charge and these are terrific monthly events. For details, see p. 2.

ArchitectureBoston is our name

The new quarterly BSA magazine that debuts in June now has a name – ArchitectureBoston. It also has an editor, Elizabeth Padjen FAIA, and an advertising sales director, Richard Vendola. The magazine will provide in-depth coverage of current building industry issues and will carry display advertising.

Each quarterly issue will focus on a specific theme of interest to the profession and our allies. In June, the focus is Practice (electronic technology, building technology, business practice, project delivery, legal issues, etc.); in September it is Society (urban design, public buildings, affordable housing, legislative issues, sustainability, social activism, etc.); and in December it is Design (annual design awards, criticism, preservation/restoration, architectural education, etc.).

The seaport, TV ads, architects and lawmakers, and the millennium are on the agenda

BSA President Peter Kuttner AIA reports regularly in this space on BSA Board action.

At recent monthly meetings of the BSA Board of Directors:

◆ We welcomed journalist, erstwhile candidate for Mayor of Boston, and now radio host Chris Lydon to the Board, as the BSA's new Public Director. Lydon, who succeeds former State Senator George Bachrach as the BSA's Public Director, fills a role that has become increasingly valuable on the Board, as we benefit from the perspective provided by someone who is not an architect.

◆ The resurgent Urban Design Committee "focus teams" drew much of our attention in recent months as we discussed the work of focus teams addressing the new seaport development proposals, the revitalization of City Hall Plaza, and the imminent creation of a team focusing on the new convention center. Board members Chris Lydon, Rick Kobus AIA, Roger Goldstein FAIA, and Rebecca Barnes AIA also led a Board discussion of ways in which the work of these focus teams might symbolize the contributions of the design profession during the last half of this century. Lydon suggested that the architectural community consider appropriate ways of "summing up the century" — from the standpoint of urban design and development — as we approach the millennium.

◆ We commended Practice Commissioner Tim Twomey AIA for his restructuring of the Professional Practice Committee into a network of project-specific task forces; the effort allows BSA members and allies to focus on efforts such as the BSA fees and compensation surveys, management information/office-filing systems standards, designer-selection for large commercial and institutional projects, the project relationships between architects and engineers, and the definition of "expanded architectural services" implied by new AIA Document B141. For more information or to become involved in these efforts, call Richard Fitzgerald at 617-951-1433x232.

◆ The gathering of architects and lawmakers on Beacon Hill on April 8 is one of the continuing legislative issues/activities addressed by the Board. Efforts to enact a certificate of merit bill to reduce frivolous suits against architects, efforts to revise the building code, and other issues related to the practice of architecture are on the Board's agenda and the agenda of the Legislative Affairs Committee. For more information, call Alexandra Lee at the BSA (617-951-1433x225).

◆ The national television advertising and print campaign, which the BSA has helped shape, was reviewed through the use of a videotape prepared by the national AIA's advertising agency; that tape will be played again for all BSA/AIA members in Massachusetts at the April 29 gathering of members in Boston to consider the national campaign proposal. (See story on p. 9.)

For more information on activities of the Board of Directors, call the BSA at 617-951-1433x232.

Chris Lydon named to BSA Board

Boston radio host and erstwhile mayoral candidate Chris Lydon has been named the 1998-1999 Public Director of the BSA.

The role of Public Director, established a few years ago by the BSA membership, is intended to bring community leaders with special expertise to Board-level discussions of the future of our profession. Former State Senator George Bachrach, who preceded Lydon in this role, was instrumental in the development of the legislative successes the architectural profession in Massachusetts has enjoyed in recent years. Now Lydon will bring his own political experience as well as his extensive experience as a journalist and radio host to the efforts of the BSA to improve our public communications programs, shape our new magazine (ArchitectureBoston), develop the new staff PR/Communications role, and use wisely the national television advertising campaign proposed for 1999.

Lydon, as most readers no doubt know, is the host of "The Connection," the WBUR/NPR radio program. A former reporter for The New York Times, Lydon also was a candidate for Mayor of Boston in 1993 and is a long-time advocate and often critic of design and development in Boston.

As a radio host, Lydon notes that he discovered early "that our audience was more passionate, more voluble on the re-design of Boston City Hall Plaza, for example, than on the presidential race of 1996." Lydon observes that "people care deeply about design issues...and so do I. I am honored and challenged to be invited into the architects's arena to address issues such as these."

Design firm marketing and PR directors gather at BSA

Marketing and public relations/communications managers and directors of Massachusetts architecture firms gathered at the BSA in February and March at the invitation of BSA Executive Director Richard Fitzgerald and Deputy Director Nancy Jenner. The intent was to begin to identify ways in which the BSA could work even more closely with design firm marketing professionals to promote the work of Massachusetts architects.

As the BSA prepares to hire its own full-time PR/Communications Director and as the national AIA prepares to embark on a national television advertising campaign, there is a growing interest among Massachusetts architects in heightening public awareness of architects and architecture in this region.

Among the two dozen marketing professionals who gathered at the BSA in February there was an immediate consensus that the opportunity to meet regularly was important. As a result, this group — the BSA Marketing and PR Breakfast Group — now meets on the fourth Wednesday of each month at 8 am at the BSA. Each monthly gathering will focus on a specific marketing or public relations issue and discussion is led by one or more of the professionals participating in the meeting.

If you are a marketing or public relations/communications professional in a Massachusetts architecture firm, we hope you will join us for these monthly gatherings. For more information, call Richard Fitzgerald at the BSA at 617-951-1433x232.

Free marketing opportunity is here again

All AIA member firms and sole practitioners in Massachusetts are listed in The Directory of Architecture Firms in Massachusetts. You are also invited to submit a firm profile including the type of work you do and examples of recent projects. These profiles are then indexed for reference in the back of the Directory. To receive your free firm profile you must return the Directory questionnaire that you received from the BSA publication office. If you did not receive a form or have misplaced yours, call 508-790-4751 today. The deadline for receipt by the BSA of your firm profile is April 17.

This is the new advertising opportunity

The new BSA magazine — ArchitectureBoston — will debut in June. This new BSA publication features in-depth articles on current issues in the building industry. The editorial focus for the June issue is practice and technology. The magazine will carry b-&-w and color display advertising. For information on this new advertising opportunity and a copy of the 1998 editorial calendar, call me at 617-951-1433x227.

Seeking fame ?

These people want to publish your work:

♦ David Eisen, the architecture critic for The Boston Herald, is interested in receiving information on work by BSA members. He is particularly interested in houses or housing, interiors, urban plans, great public projects, and tiny private retreats. Information mailed to Eisen will not be returned so do not include irreplaceable originals. Send information to David Eisen, 186 South St.-5th floor, Boston 02111.

♦ Banker & Tradesman is seeking BSA members to write editorial columns, news articles, and similar pieces for its weekly newspaper and its quarterly building industry magazine, "Structures". For more information, call Brad Seawell at 617-428-5100 and tell him you are a BSA member and you read about this opportunity in the ChapterLetter. In addition, you may want to send along non-returnable material and ideas for stories to Banker & Tradesman architecture critic Jonathan Hale or you may want to write to Terry Egan with information on current projects, ground-breakings, new commissions, etc. (always include photographs); the paper's address is 280 Summer St., Boston 02210-1131.

♦ Robert Campbell FAIA, Pulitzer Prize-winning architecture critic for The Boston Globe and other publications, is seeking houses and residential rehabs for occasional features in the "Home" section of the Globe. Work submitted should be unusual in some problem-solving way — site, program, client, etc. — and should be located in the greater Boston area (but, ideally, not in Cambridge). Mail materials to Campbell at 54 Antrim St., Cambridge 02139 or fax it to him at 617-576-4784.

Greenpeace seeks our help

In a January 1998 mailing to all AIA and ASLA chapters in the U.S., Greenpeace asked the American architectural community to help prevent the further loss of the world's ancient forests and the millions of species that depend on them. Greenpeace is focusing especially on timber from British Columbia's coast, the largest source of ancient forest wood used in the U.S. Virtually all logging in British Columbia is accomplished through the clear-cutting of old-growth forests. The Greenpeace mailing included a resource guide to alternatives and a fact sheet designed to help architects recognize temperate old-growth lumber. The full text of that mailing is available on the Web at <http://www.greenpeaceusa.org/campaigns/biodiversity/architr.html>.

Greenpeace is asking everyone in the building industry, especially architects, to take the following steps:

- ◆ Add a paragraph to standard specifications disallowing the use of the most common old-growth temperate rainforest softwoods: coastal redwood, western red cedar, western hemlock, Pacific silver fir and Sitka spruce. Please assist us by sending copies of your specifications to the address noted below.
- ◆ Adopt regional resolutions and support national resolutions in the AIA and ASLA urging architects and landscape architects to specify that no rainforest softwoods or other old-growth woods be used in your projects. (Again, please pass on a copy of such resolutions to Greenpeace.)
- ◆ Move away from the use of all woods derived from ancient (i.e., "old-growth" or "primary") forests.

For more information or assistance, please contact me at Greenpeace, 568 Howard Street (3rd floor), San Francisco CA 94105...or call me at 415-512-9025. My colleagues and I at Greenpeace look forward to assisting you in your efforts to design and develop sustainable communities.

National AIA television ad campaign director comes to Boston; members to vote on financial support

Chuck Hamlin, the innovative director of the national AIA multi-media advertising campaign, comes to Boston on April 29 along with New England's two representatives on the national AIA Board of Directors, Patricia Sherman AIA of New Hampshire and Jack Franzen AIA of Connecticut.

At issue is the proposed three-year, $3.5-million national advertising campaign, $1.5 million of which will underwrite the cost of the continuing print advertising that the AIA has been financing out of its operating budget for the past four years. The remaining $2 million for the three-year television advertising campaign would come from a special dues assessment that will be proposed at the AIA Convention in May.

The assessment, which would be $50.00 annually for each AIA member in the U.S. for each of the three years beginning in 1999, is perceived to be the best way to finance the television advertising campaign, not only because there is no other obvious source for this level of financing but also because it would ensure that the money generated by the assessment would be used only to finance the television advertising campaign; the regulations attached to an assessment would prohibit its use for any other purpose; it could not be absorbed into the national AIA operating budget. It also is an opportunity for each of us to demonstrate our commitment to the notion of broad AIA advertising efforts, which members throughout the country have been urging for many years. The notion of the $50.00/year dues assessment will be discussed and decided by members at the AIA Convention in San Francisco next month.

For Massachusetts members of the AIA, the April 29 gathering with Hamlin and our national AIA Board representatives is an opportunity to learn more about this extraordinary effort and to discuss its goals, its financing, and the message we will be sending to the American public. Incidentally, several versions of the national campaign materials (including print advertisements and television and radio commercials) will be available at no extra charge to the BSA and other AIA chapters throughout the country so we can customize these ads for local use.

I hope you will join us at the BSA on April 29 to register your comments and critiques before the AIA Convention in May. To let us know you will be coming, call the BSA at 617-951-1433x221.

AIA sponsors "Morning Edition"

The national AIA radio campaign already includes promotional material on National Public Radio's "Morning Edition" news program. This first AIA venture into national radio is part of the broader AIA advertising campaign. The 10-second announcement, which runs nationally on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday mornings through May 11 is: "AIA. The American Institute of Architects, whose members create environments that shape the way Americans live and work; 800-AIA-9930." The program, "Morning Edition," can be heard locally on WGBH FM 98.7, WBUR FM 90.9, and WUMB FM 91.9.

Architects try to shape our own practices

◆ The third Design Professionals at the State House Day is the morning of April 8, again in conjunction with other design professionals' associations. This year we hope to coordinate architects' visits to legislators' district offices in addition to the Beacon Hill visits for those of us interested in that option.

◆ The Design Professionals Government Affairs Dinner is again scheduled for the May-June period; watch this space for details.

Certificate of Merit Bill

AIA Massachusetts and the BSA are co-sponsors of Senate Bill 369, legislation designed to minimize frivolous suits against design professionals.

The American Consulting Engineers Council/New England (ACEC/NE) and AIA Massachusetts filed a Professional Liability Tribunal Bill in the 1995-96 session of the state legislature. That legislation would have established a three-person committee with veto-power over proposed professional liability claims; it was modeled on a similar law passed several years ago that provides relief for the medical profession. As expected, our bill met strong opposition from the trial lawyers' lobby and did not elicit much enthusiasm among legislators, who often repeated the "I don't want to limit the legal rights of citizens" mantra.

Prior to the start of the 1997-98 legislative session, our "tribunal" bill was rewritten as "certificate of merit" legislation (modeled on existing statutes in Georgia, Arizona and New Jersey) and was filed as Senate Bill 369. This bill would require all claims against design professionals to be accompanied by a certificate prepared by a licensed professional who is registered in the same discipline as the defendant and who certifies that the case is not frivolous.

In preparation for the bill's hearing last April, our coalition of design professional associations generated a two-inch-thick folder of supporting letters generated through grassroots advocacy with our respective professions. Unfortunately, the bill languished in committee and was eventually sent into a "study" mode, a victim of a series of controversial bills (electric deregulation, gambling, death penalty, etc.) that consumed legislators' attention.

Readers who share our concern about frivolous claims against architects and engineers can assist by contacting your state legislators directly to communicate the importance of this bill and to request that they support Senate Bill 369. You should urge your legislators to speak directly with the leadership of the Joint Standing Committee on Government Regulations.

Please inform us of any communications you have about this matter with elected officials so we can coordinate our activities.

Your Participation

In order to keep up with our aggressive agenda, the Legislative Affairs Committee needs your assistance. Meetings of the Legislative Affairs Committee are the second Tuesday of every month (8:30 am at the BSA) and are attended by members and allies committed to making architects politically relevant and to advancing our collective understanding of how state government affects the practice of architecture. Please feel free to join us at our monthly meetings or to call me at 617-267-6408 or e-mail me at dmbhicks@dhkinc.com with your questions and comments.

Architects due on Beacon Hill on April 8

The third annual Design Professionals Day at the State House is April 8. Architects, engineers, and other design professionals throughout Massachusetts gather for three significant hours of legislative policy-making activity that affects our practices in profound ways.

Every architect in Massachusetts should have received the registration notice for this event in late March; if you misplaced yours, call Alexandra Lee at the BSA (617-951-1433x225).

Our state legislators are expecting 300-500 architects and allies this year; be there. Your colleagues need you.

A.R.E. preparation courses at BAC

Each year the Boston Architectural Center and the BSA co-sponsor one of the world's best series of architectural registration exam preparation courses, all of which are held at the BAC. The schedule this year begins on March 21 and runs through May 9. For details on the courses, call the BAC at 617-536-3170.

All the courses are held at the BAC in Boston; BSA members receive a discount on the fee.

Design and practice workshops abound in April

The BSA's annual Spring workshop series for architects and other building industry professionals began in March with a session provided by Velux on residential lighting. The full schedule of two dozen sessions continues in April and is outlined here. Workshop brochures were mailed to all BSA members and friends in early March; for additional copies, call the BSA at 617-951-1433x221. The BSA is particularly grateful this year for the generous co-sponsorship of this Spring workshop series by A.J. Martini, Inc. General Contractors.

Highlights of this Spring series include:

- ◆ a 10-part series on the new Massachusetts State Building Code (March-June)
- ◆ "How to Seal the Building Envelope" on April 15
- ◆ "How to Make the New B141 a Marketing and Risk-Management Tool" on April 17 (call 800-227-4284x389 to register for this workshop only; call the BSA at 617-951-1433x221 for registration details on all other sessions).
- ◆ "A Rational Approach to Client Understanding and Marketing through 'Primary Image' Identification" — a four-part series beginning on April 21
- ◆ "Managing Design and Construction on the Internet" on April 23
- ◆ "What You Need to Know to Turn a Good Presentation into a Great One" on May 8
- ◆ "Designer-Selection and Automated Building Design for the USPS" on May 11
- ◆ "Selecting and Implementing Effective Project Accounting Systems" on May 18
- ◆ "Controlling the Spiraling Costs of Office Technology" on May 18
- ◆ "Leadership and Learning: How to Improve Your Firm's Competitive Edge Through Professional Development" on May 28

For registration details, call 617-951-1433x221.

Will you need interns this Summer ?

At this time each year, the BSA begins to receive inquiries from high-school and college students seeking paid Summer internships with Massachusetts design firms. If you think your firm might need such help this year and would like the BSA to include your firm on our referral list for interns, call now (617-951-1433x221 or, outside Boston, 800-662-1235x221) and ask for a copy of the Summer intern reply form. It's free, there is no obligation, and it has proved to be a useful service for firms and for prospective interns.

New link evolving between schools and the profession

The BSA has launched a new "academic membership" initiative tailored especially for architecture students and architectural educators. The new Academic Membership Committee is chaired by John Rossi, Assoc. AIA, a long-time advocate of students' and educators' roles in the profession.

Rossi and other Committee members will be developing new partnering programs between the BSA and New England's schools of architecture and other academic institutions. If you are interested in working with your colleagues in this effort to strengthen and re-shape the links among students, educators, and practitioners — and to expand significantly the BSA membership base, call or write Rossi at Bruner/Cott (617-492-8400x157/jrossi@brunercott.com) or BSA Deputy Director Nancy Jenner (617-951-1433x227/bsarch@architects.org).

A201 workshop is on April 9

The remarkable series of Hill & Barlow workshops on new AIA Documents A201 and B141 continues this month with a half-day session on A201 titled "Negotiating the New General Conditions: a 'How-To' Program for Owners, Contractors and Architects."

This workshop, co-sponsored by the BSA and AGC, begins at 8:30 am on April 9 at the World Trade Center in Boston and concludes at noon. The session is presented in a mock-negotiation format moderated by Hill & Barlow partner Chris Noble. Other panelists/role-players include Tim McManus (President of the Construction Management Association of America/New England Chapter), attorneys Penny Cobey (Hill & Barlow) and Bob Lizza (Sherburne, Powers & Needham), and Kevin Hines (Richard White Sons General Contractors and Construction Managers).

All of the workshops in this series have sold out quickly; for registration information, call Lorelle Parker at 617-428-3376.

Seashores, managing public work, dues views, and urban design draw the crowds

Defining and promoting the value of architectural services, serving our communities, strengthening our professional networks, and otherwise becoming more effective and successful at what we do as architects are at the core of the BSA network. Among the mechanisms available to Massachusetts architects and to our allies are the scores of issue-oriented working groups that constitute the BSA. Here are a few examples of the efforts in which members and non-members are engaged today. Select one for yourself and join us...and earn AIA Learning Units in the process.

◆ Public policy-making by architects — Architects Day on Beacon Hill this month, a special breakfast with legislative committee leaders at the State House, an information/training session for new State legislators, continuing negotiations with the interior designer community about the latter's efforts to create interior designer registration laws in Massachusetts, a bill to make it more difficult to file frivolous suits, simplification of the State building code, and promoting growth-management awareness among Massachusetts municipal leaders are among the extraordinarily critical issues addressed by the BSA/AIA Massachusetts Legislative Affairs Committee. But there are very few of us and we need your help to ensure that legislation affecting the nature of our practices and our bottom lines is not damaging us. Join us at our monthly breakfasts. For details, call Michael Hicks AIA at 617-267-6408 or BSA staff member Alexandra Lee at 617-951-1433x225.

◆ Managing public work — Architects who are employed as staff members in state and local agencies such as DCPO, DHCD, BHA, BRA, Massport, and every other public agency working on built-environment or natural-environment issues are welcome monthly for informal lunch discussions of the BSA Public-Sector Architects Committee. We focus on everything from designer-selection, capital planning, physical inspections, equipment and systems assessment, collaboration with other public agencies, funding processes, managing design professionals, etc. In March, we toured the new federal courthouse. If you are a staff member in a public agency in Massachusetts, join us for our monthly meetings. For details, call Robin Luna AIA at 617-727-4015x248 or St. John Smith AIA at 617-988-4000.

◆ Seashores — The BSA Regional Design Committee is currently addressing a broad range of regional land-use issues, the potential for a regional open-space network, efforts to ensure public access to the State's 1,200-mile shoreline, the Suburban Public Transportation Study, and other regional growth and design issues. Committee chair Bob Sturgis FAIA also has assembled a multi-layered digital presentation showing eastern Massachusetts and adjoining areas of New Hampshire, Rhode Island, and Connecticut (120 km by 120 km) including land and water topography, road and rail transportation, open-space systems, commercial and business areas, city and town centers, and neighborhoods...this presentation is used by the Committee to consider land-use possibilities in the region. Join us at our evening meetings. For details, call Bob Sturgis FAIA at 617-647-7833.

◆ Dues Views — Considering major changes in the BSA dues system for 1998, examining the benefits of membership for firms as well as individuals, planning parties and other events for new members and others, developing a new student membership initiative, and responding to members' suggestions on numerous aspects of membership in the AIA/BSA are the issues addressed monthly by the BSA Membership Committee. This is the internal think-tank of the BSA and anyone interested in joining us for what are surprisingly interesting discussions of our professional association should call Nina Monastero AIA at 617-661-7607 or BSA staff liaison Penny Mitchell at 617-951-1433x228.

◆ Urban design in and beyond Boston — The South Boston seaport plan, revitalization of City Hall Plaza, air-rights development over the Turnpike, the redevelopment of Needham Street in Newton, the proposed Congress Street pedestrian bridge, and the South Lincoln Commercial Center are among the agenda items regularly addressed by the Urban Design Committee at its monthly meetings at the offices of Cambridge Seven. Join us. For more information, call Pete Smith AIA at 617-951-6369 or John Stebbins AIA at 617-492-7000.

Members and non-members, architects, and non-architects are invited to taste the opportunities offered by these and over five dozen similar BSA networks of architects and allied professionals. For more information on any of these groups, call 617-951-1433x221 and ask for the Guide to Committees and Task Forces. Chairs of all BSA committees and task forces are invited to contribute to this column regularly and to ensure that meeting notes are conveyed to the BSA Web site by calling Nancy Jenner at 617-951-1433x227.

Bricks

A warning for your clients. Katherine McGuinness and Associates/TAMS alerts readers to a recent Massachusetts state court decision (Hession Enterprises v Commonwealth of Massachusetts Architectural Access Board) which confirmed that the current owner of a building is responsible for compliance with state access regulations (521 CMR) even if construction was done by a prior owner. Violation of the law, according to the court, survives the transfer of ownership of a building.

"Facilities and Design as Corporate Strategy" is the title of an IFMA workshop at BU's School of Management on April 7. Peter Lawrence of the Corporate Design Foundation and BusinessWeek editor Bruce Mussbaum are the speakers. For details, call 617-576-5335 or check the IFMA Website at <http://www.ifmaboston.org>.

Do you want or have office space? The BSA maintains an information clearinghouse for architects seeking to sublet space from/to other industry professionals. If you want to share space, sublet, rent a drafting station, etc., call Richard Fitzgerald at 617-951-1433x232.

Personnel agencies for architects are not always easy to locate. Boston's Consulting For Architects is, of course, well-known to architects in the Northeast. The BSA has now revised its decade-old list of a dozen other agencies that work regularly with architects throughout the country. For a list of these agencies spanning the U.S., send a 32¢ SASE to Personnel Agencies List/RF, BSA, 52 Broad St., Boston 02109.

Architects may now join AGC. When the BSA created its Affiliate Membership program in the early 1980s, the intent was to invite contractors, engineers, interior designers, landscape architects, subcontractors, clients, and all other allied professionals and citizens of Boston to become part of the BSA network. The program, initially viewed skeptically by the AIA nationally, has now been emulated throughout the nation by other AIA chapters. We also note with pleasure that the AGC chapter in Boston voted in January 1998 to expand its membership opportunities to architects, engineers, and clients. For information on AGC membership, call 781-235-2680. Perhaps we can look forward to the day when the AIA, AGC, ACEC, and related building industry organizations coalesce as the American Institute of the Building Industry?

Wentworth co-op students are available for employment from May 11 through August 21. If you need help (and who doesn't?), call Marilyn Kalis at 617-989-4101 to explore the possibility of hiring Wentworth architecture students.

Have you been audited by the IRS? There are those who believe the IRS audit program currently focuses on architects among others. There is now something called the "Insider's Guide to IRS Audits of Architects" which does not sound like Summer reading but may prove useful. For more information on this publication or to order a copy, call 800-846-2202...Following the recent Congressional hearings on IRS harassment of American taxpayers, the federal government has in fact lived up to its word and simplified the traditional 1040 income tax return form to avoid ambiguity. The new edition of this form, which came to us from IRS sleuth Jim Crissman FAIA, is printed below:

Wei Li of Shepley Bulfinch Richardson and Abbott has won the Hugh Ferriss Memorial Prize, the highest recognition of excellence in architectural delineation offered by the American Society of Architectural Perspectivists. Li was one of over 500 entrants in this year's worldwide annual juried competition. Sixty submissions have been selected for Architecture in Perspective 13, the exhibit and catalog that will be available later this year.

Firm mergers, acquisitions, and sales are reported in The Lewis List, an annual listing of design firms interested in either selling, acquiring other firms, or merging; 600 firms are listed in the current edition. For more information on this list, call Joseph Bolton at 510-820-9279 (fax 510-820-6827).

Bio-Tech Architecture is the subject in June when the Foundation for International Studies at the University of Malta hosts what it describes as the First International Workshop on Bio-Tech Architecture. Advanced computer-based techniques to create customized buildings that adapt continuously to changing climatic conditions and user behavior is the focus of this gathering. The conference will be held in English; for details, call Jean Killick in Malta at 011-356-234121 (Foundation for International Studies, Old University Building, St. Paul St., Valletta VLT07, Malta).

Exhibit proposals are welcome. The BSA Exhibits Committee invites anyone interested to submit proposals for the annual BSA exhibits program; we are now scheduling the late 1998-1999 exhibit season. Exhibits for The Architects Building and exhibits designed for other venues are welcome. For exhibit proposal guidelines, call Nancy Jenner at 617-951-1433x227. We are also seeking public and private exhibit spaces and would welcome your suggestions of such spaces in and around Boston. We also invite all readers interested in the exhibits program to join us at our lunch meetings on the third Thursday of each month at noon at the BSA.

Neighborhood planning in Boston is the subject of the APA national conference in Boston this month (April 4-8); for information on registration or other details, call 312-431-9100 (www.planning.org).

"The Arts, Millennial Time, and Community" is the April 3-4 public and professional gathering at the Massachusetts College of Art convened by the inimitable Clara Wainwright. For details on this conference or for the continuing array of millennium-inspired community activities, call Wainwright at 617-787-7778.

Historic properties are the focus of the new (1995) expanded edition of the U.S. Secretary of the Interior's standards for the treatment of historic properties. The publication is organized in four separate sections, one each for preservation, rehabilitation, restoration, and reconstruction and each section covers a full scope of building exterior materials and features, building interiors, the building site, the context, and special systems requirements. To order, use the BSA Special Publications catalog inserted in this issue of the ChapterLetter (it is item #188). This publication complements the revised 1983 guidelines also listed in the catalog as item #116.

Recycling used building materials is now possible through the expanded Building Materials Resource Center (BMRC). The Center, which was born in trailers behind the Building Materials Cooperative in Roxbury in 1994, recently expanded and relocated to a new 6,000-s.f. warehouse adjacent to the co-op. The BMRC sells used and surplus building materials at discounted prices to income-eligible customers and non-profit organizations. Contributing building materials to the Center is a terrific way to recycle what is no longer useful to some, to save money on disposal fees, to realize a tax break and, best of all, to contribute to the re-building of inner-city communities. For more information, call Jorge Casas at 617-442-8917.

California dreamers now can surf the Web for information on the national AIA Convention in San Francisco in May. The AIA98 Web site, www.aia98.org, offers current information for members and others planning to go to San Francisco for this year's convention...which boasts no registration fee (that's a deal!). The dates are May 14-17. The Web site includes information on the Bay Area's architectural legacy and there are plans to provide daily Webcasts directly from the Convention Center over the Internet. The BSA Web site is "hyper-linked" to this national convention Web site; the BSA Web address is www.architects.org.

The Boston Civic Design Commission, which reviews major development proposals in Boston, regularly holds its public meetings on the first Tuesday of each month. All meetings are at 5:15 pm in the Piemonte Conference Room on the 5th floor of Boston City Hall; meetings are open to the public.

Your restorations are wanted on TV. Before & After, the home-renovation TV series that focuses more on the architect's vision than on hammers and nails, wants to feature before-and-after photos of completed remodeling projects. This program currently airs on the Home and Garden Television Network available in 35 million homes in the U.S. If you have a project you think fits the bill (a dramatic renovation), call Rachel Baer or Dana Ritter at 612-835-4455.

Douglas Cole Smith FAIA

Former BSA President Douglas Cole Smith FAIA died in January in Natick at 72. Trained as a naval aviator, Smith attended the University of Pennsylvania where he earned his degree in architecture and engineering. From 1957 to 1967, he worked for Hugh Stubbins & Associates and in 1967 became a partner in the Cambridge firm of Ashley, Myer, Smith (which later became Arrowstreet). He then established his own firm in 1974. Smith was a former president of the Massachusetts Building Congress and the Massachusetts Construction Industry Council. He also served as a member of the Massachusetts Board of Registration of Architects and the National Council of Architectural Registration Boards. He also was the founding chair of the BSA Energy Committee and was President of the BSA in 1977. He was elected to the AIA College of Fellows in 1982.

James E. Clapp, Jr. FAIA

Jim Clapp FAIA, a former principal at Shepley Bulfinch Richardson and Abbott, died in January in Arizona, his home since 1990. He was known for his design of libraries — including Harvard's Lamont Library, the Clapp Library in Wellesley, the Portland Public Library in Maine, the Fairchild Center at Dartmouth, and Hiatt Library at Holy Cross. Mason Smith AIA, President of Shepley Bulfinch Richardson and Abbott, recently commented to the Globe that Clapp was known for his library design innovations such as the open stack. Clapp also served as President of the Boston Architectural Center, where he also was a member of the faculty. Clapp also was an authority on Roman, Greek, and Byzantine coins and served for a time as President of the Boston Numismatic Society. He graduated from Harvard College in 1931 and earned his Master's in architecture at Harvard in 1935. He was remembered by his friends and colleagues at a memorial service at Mt. Auburn Cemetery in Cambridge in February.

Pesa AIA and Tom Dawson, Assoc. AIA have been named Job Captains... Shepley Bulfinch Richardson and Abbott has announced that James McComas, Jr. AIA has been named an Associate of the firm; Jean Paul Carlhian FAIA was recently the guest lecturer at the 100th Anniversary Dedication of the Chicago Cultural Center and Andre Aoun AIA led a workshop on the design of newborn intensive-care units at a recent Chicago conference on managed care; and Interior Design magazine recently ranked the firm as the 39th largest interior-design firm in the U.S., third in educational facility design, and fourth in medical institution design... Earl R. Flansburgh + Associates has announced that Duncan McClelland AIA has been named a Principal... In a recent issue, Banker & Tradesman critic Jonathan Hale writes about the design by Schwartz/Silver of the new West Wing of the New England Aquarium... In recent issues of the Boston Business Journal, Len Cubellis AIA writes on project teamwork and BSA Affiliate Member Penny Cobey, Esq. writes on the new B141... In recent issues, Architectural Record highlights the work of Jung/Brannen (the Custom House Tower conversion for Marriott) and TAMS (the design of Vent Building #7 in Boston with Wallace, Floyd and Stull and Lee)... In recent issues, The Boston Globe has highlighted the work of Earl R. The Boston Society of Architects ChapterLetter

The BSA ChapterLetter is published monthly by the Boston Society of Architects, 52 Broad Street, Boston 02109-4301. The ChapterLetter is a service provided by AIA members in Massachusetts to the profession, the public, and everyone else with a sense of humor or an interest in 20th-century America. (For out-of-state subscription information, call 617-951-1433x228/fax: 617-951-0845.) The BSA is a non-profit, membership service organization and has been an advocate of architectural excellence and public awareness of architecture since 1867.

Letters to the editor, suggestions, criticism, encouragement, and manifestations of the light touch are welcome. Typed, double-spaced material intended for publication must reach the BSA by the deadline dates listed on page 1; diskettes (accompanying hard copy in excess of 250 words) are appreciated (PC diskettes are preferred but if you send a Mac diskette be sure it is labeled as such). Submissions may also be e-mailed to the BSA at bsarch@architects.org. Appropriate submissions are edited and published as space, temperament, and prejudices permit.
